

Hi Cruisers,

This has been a very difficult season for our Friday Cruise Nights due to the weather. We have tried to make the best of it. The next few months are the busiest time of the year for us with events. We will need your help in a lot of ways.

Thanks to everyone who has helped out this year. The Club Picnic is one of the events coming up, be sure to come and bring your Family.

Safe Cruising,
Rick

Chaplains Corner

BY: Dick Smith

Life as a boy seemed so much simpler than now. Sunday afternoons were usually spent taking a family ride in the car and then stopping at Brookwood Farms for an ice cream or milkshake. While driving along my parents would point out a home and say that's the, and they would name the family that lived there. Home Place. The house was sort of the origin of that family that lived in that area. My grandparents originally came from Germany and settled in Baltimore. That was their home place. They then relocated to Glen Burnie where they spent their remaining years. This is not to stress my genealogy, but to share the fact that we all have a home place. And fittingly, our Lord said, "In my Fathers house there are many rooms. I am going to prepare a place for you." John 14 1-2. We already know that we have a home place on earth, but at the end of our journey, there is Heaven and home.

On the lighter side

A grandfather was delivering his grandchildren to their home one day when a fire truck zoomed past. Sitting in the front seat of the fire truck was a Dalmatian dog. The children started discussing the dogs duties, "They use him to keep the crowds back." Said one child. "No, said another. "He's just for good luck." A third child brought the argument to a close. They use the dogs. She said firmly, "To find the fire hydrants." Kids say the darndest things.

BALTIMORE GRAND PRIX

When the Baltimore Grand Prix comes to town, the streets of downtown Baltimore will undergo a transformation like the city has never seen. The Sept. 2-4 event, expected to draw over 100,000 visitors, will place grandstands on the city's sidewalks and turn a typical slow stretch on Pratt Street into a 180-mile-per-hour straightaway. While it's hard to imagine what exactly the city will look like, here's a "best guess," with photos of the Grand Prix route today and renderings, courtesy of the Baltimore Grand Prix, of what is expected come race day, Sunday, Sept. 4.

Baltimore Racing Development has released two renditions of what the streets and crowds might look like at the Baltimore Grand Prix.

As Danica Patrick crosses the start line, she'll flatten her size-seven right foot onto the pedal, propelling her No. 7 GoDaddy.com Indy car to speeds most of us only fantasize about while in bumper turning onto Light Street, Patrick's 3.5-liter, eight-cylinder engine will slingshot her down the straightaway at 180 miles per hour, the roar of her vehicle eclipsing an eardrum-rattling 105 decibels. Wondering how loud that is? Snuggle up to a jackhammer for a few minutes. Once the cars streak toward Federal Hill, it won't take them long to get there. Indy cars can go from zero to 100 mph (and back to zero) in just five seconds. They produce 5,000 pounds of force at 220 mph, enough to allow the car to run upside down if that speed is maintained. For spectators it's a visceral, exhilarating cocktail of speed and sound that rumbles through the veins. With the eyes of tens of thousands of fans lining the course—and millions more watching live on national and international TV—Patrick and her competitors will traverse the Inner Harbor's maze of streets unimpeded by clueless tourists in minivans, wayward pedestrians, and, perhaps, most miraculously, potholes. But the road from concept to reality hasn't always been smooth for the Baltimore Grand Prix, the Labor Day Weekend motor sports festival—highlighted by an IndyCar Series race—that promoters claim could pump as much as $70 million into the region.
